An Extreme Penalty—A Disgraceful Scene.

NEW YORK Dec 17—Weston Ellis and Thompson, colored men, were hanged in the Tombs prison at this morning for the murder of Abram Weis, a peddler in September last. The crowd increased every moment and long before 9 o'clock lines of men all clamorous for admission filled Franklin and Center streets. The entrance to the prison was completely blocked and the police were compelled to use no small degree of force to clear the way for the officers detailed to preserve order within the walls. At 9:15 A M the doors were opened for the admission of reporters, and a rush from all sides followed. The police insisted upon an exhibition of badges, but in the confusion many persons secured admission who had no right whatever to consideration. When the entrance of the prison was gained ticket holders made a rush toward the place of execution but were checked by the police. Reporters, deputy sheriffs, special deputy sheriffs politicians and others were mixed up in inextricable confusion and fighting and struggling was resulted when it was found admission to the scaffold was to be gained only through a narrow gateway in the fence around that part of the yard in which the gallows were erected. A most disgraceful scene ensued, and the police in vain struggled to preserve order. A rush was made for the gate, and all those persons who had the right of entrance were compelled either to fight every inch of their way or remain outside. Order was restored at last, the police succeeding in forming a line and those who were unable to get into the inner yard contented themselves with climbing upon the wall outside the fence and seizing every spot of ground from which a glimpse of the gallows could be had. Quiet was then maintained until the moment of execution. After the arrival of Sheriff Conner at the prison there was not much delay. The men were pinioned in their cells, and at half past ten led out to the gallows. Weston first, followed by Thompson, each supported by a Catholic priest. Ellis who brought up the rear was attended by four clergymen of different denominations. At 10:20 o'clock Sheriff Conner gave the signal. The weights were let go and the bodies of the condemned were lifted into the air. A most horrible scene then occurred. Weston died easily, no motion of his form being perceptible except a brief shudder and an occasional contraction of his leg. Thompson suffered more, his body shivered from head to foot, his breast heaved and he raised his arms three several times working his fingers convulsively, but the mode of Ellis' death was the cruelest of all. A moment after the noose had been adjusted he suddenly turned his head and disarranged a portion of the knot. Before it could be re-adjusted the signal was given and as the weight fell the knot slipped and became fixed beneath his chin. He began to writhe horribly and placing his feet against the boards at the sides of the scaffold attempted to raise himself and relieve the pressure upon his neck. He then swung around and seized Thompson who was hanging near him and again endeavored to raise himself. In this he succeeded in twice clasping his legs around Thompson's waist and by thus easing his weight, was enabled to breathe more freely and to prolong his agony. He seized the rope just above his head, his arms having been fastened too loosely, and as he did so his handkerchief which was in his hand fell over his shoulders. He was heard to cry "Save me," and his breath was plainly visible as it issued beneath the cap that covered his face. Strong men turned away pale and trembling from the sickening spectacle, and there were murmurs of "Take him down" and "Cut the rope," but there was no need of a double execution. In his struggles he again shifted the knot and the noose suddenly closed around his windpipe and he was strangled to death.

Justices Waite Field and Bradley are the guests of Hon Thos H Dudley of Camden. The whole party—the Cabinet, Supreme Court, Senators, Representatives and newspaper correspondents—number about 400. The buildings of the Reform club, American club and Neptune club were illuminated and decorated presenting a striking appearance. The crowd in attendance at the Continental hotel was so great both inside and out that the police were obliged to put up ropes to make a passage way for the guests. A committee of citizens escorted the party to this city, meeting them at Wilmington. Mr Mitchell chairman of the committee on reception presented the President at Wilmington with a letter from the mayor of Philadelphia extending to him and the distinguished delegation the hospitalities of the city. President Grant replied in a few remarks. The newspaper correspondents are being entertained by the Press club of Philadelphia to night.

Senate.

WASHINGTON Dec 16

Morton called up the resolution submitted by him yesterday providing for appointment of a special committee of five Senators to inquire into the circumstances attending the late election in Mississippi. He said he had in his possession a large number of documents written by persons in Mississippi detailing the circumstances attending the recent election. These statements he proposed to lay before the Senate not as his own knowledge but from others. It had been alleged by those making the statements that a large part of the vote at the late election was spurious and fraudulent ... the Republican vote though it fell off somewhat, did not fall off in a corresponding ratio. He read from the papers to show there was intimidation in many counties and said at least one Democratic paper there called on its friends after the election to be true to their party and not recognize those who had voted the Republican ticket. At Columbus there were armed men and where there had been a Republican majority in previous years, there were but seventeen Republican votes cast. The ballot boxes were taken possession of by Democrats in Republican counties and stuffed by them.

Bayard said the resolution as far as he knew was without precedent in the Senate and would like to inquire of the Senator from Indiana (Morton) under what clause of the constitution of the United States he found authority to make inquiry in a case like this.

Morton said he didn't propose to enter into a constitutional argument on this question and had only to say it had been decided heretofore in the Louisiana case besides the enforcement act had been violated in Mississippi. The blow fell on the colored people as intended.

Bayard denied the Louisiana case—that this investigation was under a clause of the constitution making the Senate sole judge of claims for seats in that body. If the law had been violated in Mississippi the courts were there. This was a government of law; these courts were open for the indictment of offenders and for damages against those who wronged others and in these courts a remedy was to be found. It could not be said the political or party friends of the Indiana Senator in Mississippi had not full and equal chance before the law in the United States or State courts. The officers all over the State from Governor down to constable were of the Senator's party. If they couldn't punish violators of the law, it was a sad confession for the Senator to make. When the new Senator from Mississippi came here with his credentials if there were grounds that he was not qualified then the Senate could sit as judges, but till then no action could be taken. When in the history of this country did the Senate of the United States propose to take testimony in regard to the election of members of the other house of Congress, as this resolution proposed to do? The constitution provides that each house be judge of the qualification of its members. The governor of Mississippi asked for Federal troops before the late election to keep the people of that State in awe. The correspondence between him and the head of the Department of Justice was known to all. Governor Ames failed to show any cause for Federal interference. Bayard referred to the late message of the President which said not one word about Southern affairs. The Department of Justice had its agents down there gathering information for the guidance of that department yet from the department there was not one word or suggestion as to these alleged wrongs. If these things existed it was remarkable the President of the United States maintained dead silence on the subject. All this matter came from the Senator from Indiana who always seemed to have possession of statements hostile to the peace of the South; mere accusations without character against the white people of that country. This was a revolutionary proposition. It was but another step in the march toward consolidation of power which the people of the country must soon see. This was the first time the Senate of the United States sought to take testimony concerning the election of members of the other house in Congress and this at a time when these Southern people were bound helpless and bleeding at the foot of the Senator from Indiana and his party. The Senators of his (Bayard's) side asked when the time was to come that the Southern States could be rehabilitated? The Senator from Indiana (Morton) was asked what warrant he found in the constitution for action but could give no answer. When asked why he would interfere with Louisiana or Mississippi any more than he would with New York or New Jersey he answered "We claim the right to deal with these Southern States." If my people express their ballot against me at the ballot box I will not come here to ask the Senate to revolutionize my country. [Applause in the gallery.]

The Vice President announced that he would direct the sergeant-at-arms to clear the galleries.

Bayard resuming, said the Senate giving assent to the proposition would declare that elections in a State were to be judged by the United States.

Thurman said the resolution had not been referred to any committee, was brought in by the Senator yesterday and contained a preamble whereas it is alleged that these disorders existed. Thurman asked by whom it was alleged? Not by the President of the United States or any department of the Government or by any paper before the Senate. It was alleged by papers, the address of which was in the private pocket of the Senator from Indiana. Did that Senator want to forestall the judgment of the Senate by going into an inquiry which should not come to the Senate before 1877? When it came to decide on the credentials of a person who might come there claiming a seat from the State of Mississippi other Senators would be in the chamber then to decide that question and this Senate had no right to forestall them. He referred at some length to the Louisiana case and argued that it was no precedent for the action proposed. In the Louisiana case the investigation was not ordered until after the credentials of the persons claiming seats from that state had been presented. It would not do for him (Thurman) to say this was an attempt to get up an electioneering document at the public expense but when Morton was asked what right the Senate had to pass such a resolution he would find it impossible to give a satisfactory answer. Thurman agreed with Bayard that courts were in Mississippi and if the enforcement act had been violated offenders could be punished.

Morton said in his opinion this debate on the part of his Democratic friends was simply extraordinary and was in conflict with their course in the Louisiana case. He argued that the Louisiana investigation was ordered by the Senate before the credentials of applicants for seats were presented and believed the investigation was ordered with the approbation of his friends but now they had discovered there was no power to make an investigation. He argued that the power was derived from the several clauses in the constitution. That instrument said the United States must guarantee a republican form of government to every State. If the ballot-boxes were to be stuffed as in Mississippi the whole republic might be overthrown. Bayard had said this was a revolutionary measure. It was not, but to guard against revolution. Bayard had said that if the Republicans should carry his State he would not come here for relief. Morton was sure if the Republicans were to carry that State by the means with which the Democrats carried Mississippi the last of it would never be heard.

WASHINGTON Dec 17—Various memorials asking the appointment of a commission to inquire into the alcoholic liquor traffic were presented and referred to the committee on finance.

Edmunds submitted the following:

WHEREAS Since the last session of the Senate the Vice President of the United States has deceased therefore

Resolved That on the 7th day of January next at one P M the Senate will proceed to the election of a President pro tem.

Edmunds said he offered this resolution and would like to have it lie over and be printed in order that during recess Senators might look up precedents and consider the important question which has been suggested in the newspapers and otherwise in respect to Speaker of the House of Representatives and President of the Senate in the event of what in the course of life was a probable contingency. He had no personal doubt that the present President of the Senate was President pro tem within the Constitution but in his opinion it was advisable if there was any possible doubt about that the Senate should put the question at rest.

Thurman suggested that the Senator from Vermont consent to have the resolution referred either to the committee on judiciary of which Edmunds was chairman or to the committee on privileges and elections. If referred to a committee the report could be made and the Senate should have the report from some committee.

Boutwell suggested it be referred to the judiciary committee.

Thurman moved that it be referred to the committee on privileges and elections.

Saulsbury said he was a member of the committee on privileges and elections and ... duty but it occurred to him this question belongs to the judiciary committee and he moved to refer to that committee.

Edmunds said he was willing to have it referred and the motion of Saulsbury was agreed to. Subsequently that motion was reconsidered and the resolution referred to the committee on privileges and elections.

The chair laid before the Senate as unfinished business the resolution of the Senator from Indiana (Morton) authorizing the appointment of a special committee to inquire into the late election in Mississippi.

Thurman hoped the discussion on this resolution would go over until Monday.

Morton said he had been spoken to by several ... [illegible] ... to keep the Senate ... dispose of the matter. If it could be taken in an hour he would be glad; if not he would not, and therefore made objection to its going over till Monday.

The Senate went into executive session and on opening of the doors adjourned until Monday.

House

Starkweather presented a petition against further appropriations for distribution of seeds through the agricultural bureau.

On motion of Randall the ... resolution for adjournment postponing the day of meeting from the 4th to the 5th of January was agreed to.

The Speaker alluding to the necessity of having a committee on enrolled bills in respect to bills that might pass Congress before the holiday recess appointed Harrison the committee.

Bills introduced and referred as follows: By Franklin for the construction of public buildings in Kansas City Mo. By Wilshire donating public lands in Arkansas to that State for the support of the public free schools and of the State University; also a resolution instructing the committee on Indian affairs to inquire into the appointment compensation etc of the special commissioner to the Indian Territory. Adopted. By Stemmons to repeal the tax on tea and tobacco; also resolutions calling on the Attorney General for information as to the number of prisoners held by authority of the United States Government in different State prisons, with annual expense thereof. Adopted. By Conger for the better protection of emigrants and to prevent the importation of criminals. By Durand to enable certain soldiers and sailors to perfect title to homesteads under the homestead law, without entry occupation or improvement. By Oliver to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Missouri river at Sioux City. By Rusk for public buildings at La Crosse Wis; also providing that all pensions on account of death from wounds or disease received in service shall commence from the date of the death or discharge. Page, of California offered the following:

WHEREAS The constitution of the United States, as framed by the fathers of the republic imposed no limits on eligibility of any citizen to the office of President further than that he must be native born and of a certain age and time of residence, therefore

Resolved That in judgment of this House the right of electing candidates for the office of President can only be lawfully exercised by the people under the existing constitutional restrictions and has never been delegated by the people to the House of Representatives or to any of the members of the same, and that any attempt by the House of Representatives to limit or forestall the public will on questions of such importance is an invasion of the powers exercised by the people at large and to be fully exercised by them without any interference from any legislative body whatever. The reading of the resolution was greeted with laughter on both sides of the House and the House refused to second the previous question by a vote of 30 to 89.

By Dunnell—To authorize the Secretary of the Interior to ascertain the amount due the State of Minnesota for suppressing Indian hostilities.

By Faulkner—To pay the German Evangelical Church Martinsburg W Va $2500 on account of the destruction of the church in 1863 while in the possession of the military forces of the United States.

By Kidder—To establish the Territory of Pembina.

Lawrence offered the following resolution which was agreed to:

WHEREAS The incorporation of general legislation in appropriation bills sometimes requires either the support of objectional provisions or opposition to necessary appropriations and whereas every measure should stand on its own merits, therefore,

Resolved That the committee on rules be directed to report an amendment to the rules which shall exclude from appropriation bills all generalization either on reports or conference of committees or otherwise.

Cox offered the following resolution which was agreed to:

Resolved That the committee on foreign affairs inquire into and report upon the expediency and justice of giving to the German Empire the notice required by the fifth article of the treaty with the North German Empire signed February 26th for the termination of said treaty, or so much thereof and of the protocol of June 12 1873 as related to citizens of the United States, their renunciation of naturalization and their political condition in Germany under said treaty and protocol.

House then adjourned until Monday next with the understanding that the business on that day shall be confined to the presentation by the Speaker of any communications he may have to make.

THE MAIL BAG ROBBERY.

THE TRIAL OF ANDREW HARMISON ALIAS DAN SMITH IN THE U S DISTRICT COURT

Fourth Day.

Court met at 9 o'clock, pursuant to adjournment.

J B MONTGOMERY

Was called and testified: I reside in Rogue river; have resided for the last five years there. Have known Dan Smith for some time; knew he was engaged in stage driving. In October 1874 he was driving stage between Roseburg and Grave creek station. I had some conversation with him in October 1874. Smith told me that he had received a telegram from his wife who was lying very sick in Sacramento; showed me a dispatch from her, said that if he desired to see her alive he would have to come without delay; he asked me to drive him over to Grave creek station in a buggy. I got a team and we started; when we got over to Myrtle creek Dan asked me if I could keep a secret; he then told me that he had money enough to keep us both from working. I asked him how and where he got it and he first said from some Chinaman, but afterwards said he had robbed the mails. When we reached the station kept by Cardwell Smith got out and went into the barn; he was absent from five to ten minutes and then came back, got into the buggy and told me to drive on; after we got about 100 yards from the barn Dan said "I have got it"; he ran his hand into his pocket and drew out a can which he said contained gold dust; the can he showed me was cut a little at one end with a knife. Smith pryed the edges up with his finger nail or a knife, and poured some of the dust out into his hand which he showed me; the can I should judge weighed three or four pounds; he took out of his other pocket two more cans and showed them to me. I told him I thought the two cans would weigh from four to five pounds each; he said Cardwell knew about his robbing the mail. I told him I did not wish to have anything to do with the dust; that it was a dangerous piece of business; that I had a family and did not want to take any chances in the matter; he asked me if I would divulge on him; told him I would not unless I was compelled to do so. Smith said if I did, he would take my life or if he did not his friends would. When I learned how he got the dust, I felt uneasy and told Smith that I did not like to have it in the carriage with us; that he was liable to be arrested at any time and I did not want to have anything to do with the matter; I objected so strongly to having the dust in the buggy (as Smith, after showing the cans to me had laid them down at our feet just behind the dashboard), that he consented at length to take them out. We came to a bridge between Jeff Green's and Rossberg and he got out, and taking the cans hid them under the bridge. As we came back that way he wanted to get out and take the dust up into a gulch and hide it, but I objected very strongly, and he did not get out. As we crossed the Umpqua river Smith pointed out to me where he had thrown the mail pouch, after robbing it.

Cross examined—It was between the 7th and 12th of October when Dan first told me about the robbing of the mail. I left for California with stock (I was engaged in buying horses) on the 12th of November. Do not know when I got acquainted with Smith; think it was several years ago; have been quite intimately acquainted with him for about two years. When we started he said he was glad as he had something important he wished to communicate to me; told me when he showed me the cans that he thought they would weigh about 20 pounds. I did not estimate the value of the dust at the time we were talking about it. Smith had a bottle of whisky along with him; he asked me to drink every few minutes. I drank some five or six times while we were on the road. I was under the influence of liquor to a considerable extent at the time; was not particularly drunk, but was not sober; had not been on a spree with Smith but was pretty full; stopped at the stable at Oak Grove station; saw Cardwell there at the time; we stopped the buggy in front of the stable door in the middle of the road. I knew where the granary was in the barn; think Smith and Cardwell both stepped into the stable at once. Smith remained but a few minutes, when he came out, got into the buggy and we drove off. Have lived in this State since 1864; have lived for several years in Idaho; I came from Virginia to this coast. Smith did not show me the gold dust until we had got some little distance from the barn; the cans were separated; it was after I told Smith I would have nothing to do with the dust that he said I must keep the secret. [Witness here took a can and showed to the jury the manner in which the can showed him by Smith was cut.] Resumed: Smith poured the dust back into the can after he had emptied it into his hand; he then put the can back into his pocket; pressed down the edges of the cut so as to prevent the dust from spilling out before putting the can back into his pocket; two of the cans were laid down in the front of the buggy. This happened quite late in the day; couldn't state the exact time; could not tell how many persons we met that day on the road; passed a good many; did not notice particularly as to that. Smith told me he had taken the dust from the mail sack about one month before. I do not think I was in Roseburg on the night of the 20th. I went to Roseburg on business with Rush Simpkins some time during October; could not possibly tell date. I do not know W C Pettyjohn; never knew him. [Mr Effinger asked witness if he knew that Pettyjohn was witness in this case before grand jury. Question was objected to and objections overruled by the court.] I heard that Pettyjohn was a witness before the grand jury; heard that his testimony had some reference to me; that he (Pettyjohn) had stated that he had had a conversation with me. I do not know to what Pettyjohn swore before the grand jury. I do not know where Pettyjohn now is; I was told by a man that he was not in the city. I think it was Mr Mallory who told me so. I did not know that Pettyjohn was now in Victoria, nor did not know that he was intending to go to Victoria. I was in no manner whatever connected with his leaving the country. Have no idea when he left here. I played poker with Pettyjohn all one night in Roseburg, which was the first time I ever saw the man. I was never arrested that I know of; never had a warrant served on me in this mail robbery matter. Mr Mallory was the first person with whom I ever talked about the robbery except Smith and my wife. I did not talk with any person about the robbery until I was arrested and brought down to Roseburg. I do not know Jack Fox. I know John Fullerton; he was the person who took me down to Roseburg; he did not serve papers on me, but told me he wanted me to go down with him to Roseburg. I was brought down to Portland and placed under bonds. I supposed it was for my appearance as witness in the case. I do not think that was the first thing I said after being arrested. I was ...

Have you got Wiley Cardwell? When I was first arrested ... and I had a long talk about the mail robbery. I told Fullerton that I was just intending to come down to Roseburg, and tell Underwood all I knew about the transaction. I knew that Cardwell knew all about it, because Smith told me he did. When I came back from California the second time I had a long conversation with Cardwell ... he said to me that he did not know a thing about the matter. I told him he knew all about it and the best thing he could do would be to go to the authorities and tell all he knew. I said I intended to go to Underwood and divulge all I knew of the robbery and advised him to go along with me. I don't think I said to Cardwell that he and I would have to make up a good story to save ourselves and send Dan and the old woman up. I do not know how long it was from the time I had this conversation with Cardwell before I told Underwood. Next morning after talking with Cardwell I was arrested by Fullerton and taken to Roseburg. Had been in the State only three or four days before being arrested. Could not give the date of the conversation with Cardwell. I intended to come and tell Underwood at once after having the talk with Cardwell. I did not think anything about telling Underwood of the robbery until Dan ran away with my wife. [Witness here gave in detail all that Smith had told him about where he hid the mail pouch.]

J B UNDERWOOD

Was called next and testified: Reside in Eugene City; am special agent of the Postoffice Department; have been connected with the service for about six years. I received official notification of the robbery in October 1874, by telegram from my deputy Mr Dexter. I was in Eastern Oregon at that time. Came at once to Portland; made some inquiries and proceeded without delay to Roseburg and commenced investigations. Found out who drove the stage between Roseburg and Oak Grove station on the night the robbery was committed. Discovered that Dan was the driver on the night of the 20th. I also found out that Dan and Jack had been running together considerably and that they had both gone to California. I telegraphed to the authorities about the robbery and told them to watch Smith and Montgomery who were there on the latter's ranch, and to watch them. I asked to have Smith reinstated as driver on the road which was done by the company. Smith was in California about one month. He then came back and drove stage until July 1st 1875. During that time saw Smith often; saw him for the last time on July 6th; came down on the train with him from Eugene. I had partially abandoned my suspicions that Dan had anything to do with the robbery but when I saw his actions on the train, I suspected him; he acted rather strange as I thought, watching me closely all the time; whenever I looked at him I found him always looking at me; he appeared restless and uneasy and when I changed cars or moved about he contrived to sit directly in front so he could look at me. I had some conversation with Smith while coming down; he said he had lately upset the stage and had hurt his breast and that he was coming down to Portland to receive medical treatment; he stopped at the St Charles hotel after reaching Portland. I visited him at the hotel several times and had some talk with him; I generally found him lying on the lounge; he complained a great deal about his breast giving him pain; he registered his name at the hotel as "E Smith"; he told me when we were coming back from Texas that he did not purchase a steamer ticket here but went on board and paid his passage; he told me what name he assumed but do not remember it now; when he and Mrs Montgomery reached San Francisco they put up at the American Exchange hotel and registered their names as "Holmes." I went in pursuit of Smith from here; started from Eugene on Saturday Aug 14th I think it was; went to Roseburg; there met Fullerton and Montgomery; we then went and got the missing pouch, and from there proceeded to California, thence we (Fullerton and myself) proceeded to Washington Iowa where I understood that Smith's mother was living under the name of Harmiston. From Washington, Iowa we tracked Smith and Mrs Montgomery to Seguin, Texas where they were arrested. [Witness here took a map and explained at some length, to the court and jury the route he had gone in pursuit of Smith.] At the time Smith was arrested, I was about 100 yards away from the spot. I had posted myself up on the roof of a house for the purpose of watching the hotel where Smith and Mrs Montgomery were stopping. I had arranged it with the sheriff and arresting officer that when Smith made his appearance I would make a signal to them so that they might know who to arrest and not make a mistake by getting the wrong man. Smith left the hotel about 8 o'clock on the morning after we reached Seguin and walked across the street in the direction of a saloon. I gave the signal agreed upon, and he was taken into custody. When he was arrested, Smith asked me what I was going to do with him. I told him I was going to bring him back to Oregon; said he wanted to go to the hotel and see Jennie before going away; went with him and the officers to the hotel where Mrs Montgomery was also arrested. I took Mrs Montgomery's key and opened the trunk. I found in a buckskin bag $200 in gold coin, $20 pieces—in a purse a $20 gold piece, a gold dollar, some silver and a 20 cent piece of silver; in a pocket book found $450 in new currency. Smith had a gold watch and chain on his person valued at $150. Mrs Montgomery also had on a gold watch and chain of about equal value. Smith also had a fine gun—one of Evans patent—worth about $75. I examined the purse containing the gold coin. Had the appearance of having contained at some time gold dust. All the gold twenties found in the bag were new—apparently just from the mint—and all coined in 1875. [Here the coin and the bag were exhibited to the court and jury.] I was present when the mail pouch was taken from the river. It was on the 14th or 15th of August—on Sunday. [Witness described the appearance of the pouch when it was taken from the river where it was found, the character of the country around, relative position of the stable with reference to the point where the pouch was thrown into the river, etc.]

Cross examined—I first heard of the robbery on the 10th of November, 1874; was in Eastern Oregon at the time. My deputy Mr Dexter, informed me of it by dispatch; staid in Roseburg two days; learned that Dan had driven the stage on the night of the 20th; that he had received a dispatch from Sacramento in regard to his sick wife; also that Smith and Montgomery had been quite intimate for some time prior to the robbery; had left the State together and gone to California. I was informed by Al Burrows and VanBuren agents that Smith drove the stage on the night of the robbery; on the way down from Eastern Oregon staid only one night in Portland. Deputy Dexter was assisting me in making investigations. I told Comstock to look after the matter sometime during the month of December 1874. Had several conversations with him (Comstock) after that date; did not start overland for California until August 1875; came down on cars last July with Smith; took dinner at Junction that day with ...; was introduced to Smith at Junction; my suspicions were aroused from his actions. I knew Smith before I was introduced to him; did not speak to Smith at all about mail sack; perhaps I did to Dexter and Cox. I swore a warrant out for Dan's arrest on the 11th or 12th of July. Jack Montgomery told me where Smith had thrown the pouch; the Umpqua river was quite low at that point; the pool is just above the point of rocks; there were some eight or ten rocks in the mail sack when it was taken from the river; while traveling East in pursuit of Smith I always registered my name as "J J Jones"; I did not know but what Smith had someone looking out for pursuers. Smith told me his reason for traveling under an assumed name was to prevent Jack Montgomery from following him. I have never taken any particular interest in Jack Montgomery, ... or otherwise; have had a number of conversations with him about the robbery; have never promised to assist in procuring the dismissal of the charges against Montgomery.

Afternoon Session.

The court commenced pursuant to adjournment at half past 1 o'clock.

The United States offered a calendar for 1874, for evidence for the purpose of proving the day of the week corresponding to Oct 20th 1874 and also the phase of the moon on that date.

MARK KIN

Was called and sworn: I am an insurance agent; I reside in Portland; from 1861 until 186– I was in the mint in San Francisco as an assayer. [This coin was shown witness.] This is a twenty dollar piece. It was coined at Philadelphia.

Cross examined—Defendant's counsel: How do you know?

Answer—Every twenty dollar piece except those coined at Philadelphia have a letter denoting the branch mint at which it was coined. There used formerly to be several branch mints in the United States. Recently those branch mints have been closed except that at Carson City and that at San Francisco. That at San Francisco has been lately made a full mint. I see no mutilation, or indentation, on this coin. I never got any coin from the Philadelphia mint. I know this coin was coined at Philadelphia because it has no letter on it. A coin from Carson City would have "CC" on it and one from San Francisco would have the letter "S."

Re direct—I notice no indentation on this coin. I am looking at the place, no letter and no mark of any having been there, I am satisfied the coin has not been tampered with.

The District Attorney, going to witness said: Look at this.

Mr Effinger—I object.

The District Attorney, continuing—Mark and say what ("I object" from Mr Effinger) it is.

Before the witness had determined what in his opinion the mark was, or could reply, the court heard defendant's objection and overruled it.

Witness answered—It is the impression of a stamp—it is on this one, but not on this other one.

HENRY FAILING

Called and sworn—I am a bank officer. I am familiar with the coinage of the different mints; the coins from San Francisco are stamped "S," Carson City "CC," Philadelphia nothing. I have frequently examined coin to ascertain this; the coins shown me were coined, in my opinion, at Philadelphia, because there is no letter mark on them; the letters alluded to are under the escutcheon and directly over the "N" in the word "twenty" in the denomination of the coin stamped near its rim; the letters are very small, smaller than on the earlier coinage.

Cross examined—In a quantity of five hundred twenty dollar pieces in bulk in the bank vault there might perhaps be nine tenths of them from the San Francisco mint. The reason of this is that when we send for coin to our bank correspondent in San Francisco, it is sent to us in bulk and generally, I presume, from the mint there. The proportion of coins from the San Francisco mint, which might be found in a similar number of twenty dollar pieces taken from the general circulation, would be less than that given as the proportion of them in a quantity taken from a bank vault here, because some of them might be brought here by persons from the East or elsewhere, from different places, while those in the vaults would probably come from the same place—the same city. I have never had any consignments of coin directly from the mint. When I was in business in New York 25 years ago I got coin for my employers from Philadelphia.

BEN UNDERWOOD

Smith said he had only $80 or $100 when he left here.

Cross examined—The day we left St. Louis while Dan Smith, Mrs Montgomery, Fullerton and I were taking lunch, Mrs Montgomery said something about the lunch basket which a soldier had given them. Dan Smith then went on to tell me about a soldier who had given them the lunch basket and lent Smith $500 to play poker with on the cars. Dan told me he had told the soldier that he had lost the money, but that he had really done no such thing. Dan said he had only $80 or $100 when he left Portland, and this accounted for the money found with him. Dan said he paid no fare from Portland to San Francisco and that the soldier paid the fare for him and Mrs Montgomery to Omaha; the soldier had just inherited a fortune in Europe, and was then on his way to get it. I quizzed him about the soldier, but not about the $450 in greenbacks. I did not know then than Dan knew I had it. I offered Dan no inducement to talk; he talked freely of his own accord.

B J QUIMBY

Sworn: I am a hotel-keeper, I kept St. Charles Hotel in July 1875; about 6th or 7th July Dan Smith came and registered his name as "E Smith," he remained there two or three days, his room was No. 55; don't know whether he was alone. Mrs Montgomery came afterwards and registered as Mrs Smith; don't know whether he and she roomed together.

Cross-examined—We were repairing and fixing up the house. There were no lounges in the office at that time. I don't remember seeing Smith lying on the lounge. He did not walk lame. I don't think Underwood was in the office while Smith was there—he might have been. I was in the office when Dan Smith came. I think he registered his name himself. I think he wrote it himself. I can produce the registry book. Smith wrote his name himself. I wrote "Roseburg" myself. I may have written his name. I've known Smith three or four years, always known him as Dan Smith.

Redirect—Underwood cut Smith's name out of the registry book.

Re-cross examined—If I examined the book I should find only a hole. The piece with Smith's name on it which was cut out, went into the hands of Underwood and Fullerton.

[Here defendant's counsel moved to strike out of Underwood's testimony all that which refers to Dan Smith's registering at the St Charles on the ground that the slip cut out and in the possession of the United States is the best evidence of the fact desired to be proved.]

After argument the court allowed the United States to chose between producing the slip of paper or having Underwood's testimony touching the registry of Smith stricken out or if the United States could not produce the slip, accounting for its absence.

The district attorney called

J FULLERTON,

Who was sworn and testified: I examined the records of the St Charles hotel and found the name of E Smith on the date which corresponded with the day Dan Smith arrived in Portland. I cut it out and kept it until I reached San Francisco on my return from Texas, when the piece of paper was lost or stolen from me on the ferry boat. It was in a small pocket book which was taken from my pocket at that time.

Cross examined—I know Dan Smith's handwriting. The slip cut out by me was not written by Smith; the name was not in his handwriting. I found out that the name was not in his handwriting after I got back to Yreka. I am sure it was written "E Smith" not "D Smith." There were a good many flourishes about the initial "E," but I am sure it was an "E."

After the conclusion of Fullerton's testimony the district attorney rested the case of the government.

The testimony for the defense opened with the examination of

A. SPROUL

A. Sproul called and appeared.

Mr Effinger—I would ask you, Mr Sproul—

The District Attorney—I wish to ask if Mr Sproul has been in the court room during the examination of any of the witnesses for the United States except himself?

Mr Sproul—I was in the court room; I heard some of the witnesses testify.

The defendant's counsel then asked leave to examine Mr Sproul on a matter not alluded to by any witness for the prosecution. Leave was granted by the court.

Mr Sproul—I cannot identify either one of the coins as the one I marked on the 12th or 13th of October, 1874. I never have got back my lost gold dust. I have never received any pay for it either by myself or by my agent or attorney. I have never either directly or indirectly by myself or by any agent acting with or without authority from me made any agreement or received any promise or had any understanding with or from any person whomsoever for the return to me of my gold lost or for the payment or satisfaction to me of the loss I sustained when it was stolen. I have never been approached by any person on this subject.

JOHN NEUMAN

Called and sworn: The same question was asked this witness by the district attorney as was asked of Sproul, and the answer was the same.

The District Attorney. Then I object to his examination. Under the rule made by the court at the instance and request of the defendant's counsel the defendant has no right to examine this witness.

The court decided after hearing arguments from defendant's counsel and from the counsel for the United States that having, at the instance and request of the defendant speaking by his counsel made a rule at the beginning of the hearing of this cause that neither party should have the right to call and examine any witness who had been in court during the examination of any other witness previous to his own examination and having required each of the witnesses for the United States to be kept out of the court room during the examination of the others, the court could not now disregard this rule and allow witnesses for the defendant who had remained in the court-room during the trial of this cause to be called and testify. It was hard for the defendant, but the rule having been made, the court was bound to adhere to it. Objection sustained.

The defendant's counsel asked leave to examine this witness on a matter not previously testified to by witness for prosecution. Granted by the court.

JOHN NEUMAN.

I reside at Levins' station, 13 or 14 miles south of Canyonville. I take care of horses for the Stage Company. I have been there about two years. I know Dan Smith. He drives the stage to that station, and Levins' is a "home station;" that is it is a station where the drivers change. The stages at about the 20th October, 1874 used to get in at 4 o'clock A M. The drivers would go to bed and sleep until afternoon. At 7 or 8 P. M. the driver would go out for his return trip. In addition to cleaning the horses, I had to mend broken harness, etc., when needed. The drivers leave their tool sacks out of the rooms where they sleep, and when I wanted anything to use of them, I used to go and get it. Dan Smith never took his tool sack in his room with him. I am quite sure of it.

Defendant's counsel prayed the court for an adjournment to allow them time to examine witnesses and otherwise prepare the defendant's case, whereupon the court adjourned until Saturday at 9 A. M.

CANADA.

Case for Secretary Fish.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17—Owing to the refusal of the U. S authorities to allow Canadian vessels to navigate American canals on the same footing as American vessels, the Dominion Government has prepared a case and forwarded it to Secretary Fish.

Bread, or Work, Wanted.

MONTREAL, Dec 17—This forenoon about 1,000 unemployed people, mostly French Canadians, assembled in front of the City Hall, where they remained for some time in an excited state, but beyond relieving a bread wagon of a dozen loaves, no reprehensible acts were committed. Alderman Grievier spoke to the crowd, advising them to adjourn until 3 P M when the council would be ready to give them some answer in response to their demand for work or bread. The majority of the assemblage then marched through the streets in a tumultuous column. At 3 P M a disorderly throng of over 2,000 surrounded the City Hall, and despite a large body of police the mob attacked a beer wagon, took the casks and drank the contents. A bread wagon was then cleaned out. Ten minutes later a fight took place, and order was restored with difficulty. The alderman discussed the propriety of reading the riot act. The mayor then addressed the assemblage from the balcony and counseled the greatest moderation on their part. He said that violence would only make the matter worse. The council was to meet to give their case earnest consideration. He reflected on those who wanted to create disorder and was interrupted by cries of, "We are suffering and want food." At a quarter to 4 the council commenced deliberations. Meanwhile several encounters took place between the police and the excited mob, Chief Penton taking an active part. Several arrests were made, and upon the approach of reinforcements, the crowd fled in every direction. Numbers were intoxicated, and while no doubt large numbers of laborers present really deserved work, many simply waited an opportunity to plunder.

SATURDAY MORNING DEC 18 18[illegible]

MR. MORTON'S INQUISITION

This is a most remarkable, not to say alarming, resolution which was introduced into the Senate by Mr Morton the other day relative to the political situation in Mississippi. After reciting that the Republicans carried the State at the next to the last election by [illegible],000, that at the last election the Democrats carried it by about the same majority, and that it is reported that this change was brought about by means of intimidation and coercion, the resolution proceeds to ask for a committee of five Senators to investigate the case with power to compel the attendance of witnesses, the production of papers, etc. At the first blush the intelligent reader is apt to inquire by what constitutional warrant the United States Senate can go into a State and institute an investigation of the question whether an election therein was fairly conducted or not. This inquiry is anticipated by Senator Morton, and he meets it with a further recital that the legislature chosen in the election which he seeks to investigate when it convenes will have devolved upon it the duty of electing two United States Senators; and it is assumed that for this reason the Senate has the right to exercise the jurisdiction contemplated in the resolution.

It is well understood that the Senate is the sole judge of the election and qualification of its members, but it would be a stretch of power never before claimed, so far as our reading extends, for the Senate, as a means of informing its members as to the election of its members, to institute a general censorship over the election of members of State legislatures. Morton's resolution amounts to an assertion of such a right and a purpose to exercise it in the most objectionable form possible, by trying the case before the Senatorial election has taken place and even before the legislature has convened. The organization of the legislature of Louisiana last winter by military force was deemed by the whole country to be an unwarranted interference in the affairs of the State Government, but that was nothing compared to the pretensions set up by this resolution, which strikes at the very foundation of the rights of the several communities that compose the Republic. We are not asserting that the plan of several sovereign governments within a sovereign government, upon which our nation is formed, is the best security for the perpetuity of the nation. That has nothing to do with the case. We have a constitution and it is certain that no infraction of it, especially upon so radical a point as this, can be safe. Let it be amended if the wisdom of the present generation has discovered that the fathers of the Government did not understand themselves when they devised it, but while it exists in fact, let it be enforced in its true spirit.

It will be time enough for the Senate to pass upon the election of Senators from Mississippi after those senators are, or claim to have been elected. If that body shall then take upon itself the responsibility of exercising the extremely questionable right to inquire into the legality of the election by the people of members of the legislature as a means of determining the question properly before it, the act will at least be free from the criticism that it is merely an inquisition in State affairs for partisan purposes. We hope and predict that Mr Morton's resolution will not receive the support of his party, and that the board of inquisitors asked for will not be created.

WILLIE REYNARD'S CASE

We have criticised Governor Grover for his liberal exercise of executive clemency in pardoning convicts. In this we have been actuated by no personal or partisan hostility, but by what we considered the best interests of society and a consequent sense of duty as a public journalist. We are glad to be able to say that he has just exercised the pardoning power in an eminently proper case. Little Willie Reynard has been pardoned, having just been bound in due form of law to Hiram Smith of Harrisburg, who agrees to place the boy on his farm twelve miles from that town and train him to habits of industry and honesty. Willie is certainly not a good boy now, but he is a mere child, and under the care of Mr Smith may make a good citizen and a useful man. Had there been a Reform School when he was convicted he would have been sent there instead of to the penitentiary, and we feel sure he is in quite as good hands now and under quite as healthful restraints as he would be in such an institution. The Governor's action in granting this pardon will be generally approved by public sentiment.

Mr Smith's part in this matter is worthy of note, in this selfish world. Happening to be on the same train on which the boy was conveyed to the penitentiary by the Sheriff of this county, and observing the tender age of the lad, he was moved with pity and made inquiry as to who the child was. He had never seen or heard of the child or its parents, except as the case had been noticed in the papers, but he immediately proposed to take charge of the child and try to save him from the life that seemed to open before him. The result of his endeavors was the pardon of the child, as above noted. This is benevolence of the kind that has a practical purpose and value in it.

BISMARCK AND VON ARNIM

A Paris letter to the London Times says a work has appeared in Zurich attributed to Count Von Arnim, which throws a little light on the quarrel between the Count and Bismarck. [illegible] Bismarck was anxious to have the Count use all his influence while at Paris to sustain the government of Thiers. [illegible] the Count, while having [illegible] guard by impressing opposite views upon the Emperor. Von Arnim seems to have [illegible] that the [illegible] the Marshal [illegible] and the [illegible] than Empire while Bismarck thought the interests of Germany would be promoted by the continuance of Thiers presidency. But the real ground of the misunderstanding is declared in a dispatch from Bismarck to Arnim, under date of September 1st, 1873, in which the following paragraph occurs:

You go [illegible] with the Empress and you will not rest till you [illegible] here at the table at which I am sitting. I have found that it is not worth having. I have known you from youth. [illegible] you [illegible] years ago [illegible] seen a natural enemy. At this moment [illegible] You delayed the conclusion of the convention (the German evacuation of France) of the 15th March in order to overturn Thiers and I must now bear the responsibility of that political blunder. You have accused me to the Emperor; you have relations at court which have previously prevented me from summoning your father.

If the Democrats in the Senate have as much sagacity as the Republicans manifested in voting for the anti third term resolution in the House they will simply accept and vote for the resolution introduced into that branch of the national legislature declaring the Republic to be a nation and not a mere confederation. This resolution, like the other, is nothing but a manœuvre for partisan advantage, but it has also another feature in common with the other, namely, that it declares a sound principle of government. The Democrats can turn it to their advantage by giving it their unanimous vote. It can hardly be expected, however, that they will do that, as the Bourbon mind has never yet been known to rise to the height of acknowledging an error.

Important contributions are unavoidably crowded out by the press of matter which cannot be passed over.

CITY.

DEPARTURE OF MR FRANKLIN Among the [illegible] on the Orflamme we notice with [illegible] the name of Mr. A A Franklin, having learned that this gentleman goes to San Francisco to establish himself in business and may not return to Oregon, Mr Franklin [illegible] to this city with Messrs Smith & Champ[illegible], three years since, for the purpose of establishing a shoe manufactory The history of their enterprise is well known Although moderately successful in spite of fire and hard times, they did not have the capital required to warrant continuance on an individual basis, and an offer from a Salem company induced them to sell their property Fire again attacked them, and when an effort was on foot to still try again, came the lamented death of Mr D P Smith—one of the best men who ever adopted Oregon as a home. This last blow dissipated the hopes of the other and they retire honorably from the field of as earnest an effort as men ever made Mr F [illegible] a host of friends in our midst won by his character as a business man and friend, and by the rare gift which he so generously placed at almost public disposal, his fine voice [illegible] The Amphion Club of which he was a member, will virtually cease to exist. As a choice singer he had but few equals anywhere We can only hope some turn of affairs may bring him back to a community which he had become much attached to, and which can not soon forget him or supply his place.

THE LADIES' FAIR.—One of the most profitable and enjoyable fairs and festivals given this season, came off last evening at the hall near the corner of Taylor and First streets under the auspices of the ladies and friends of St [illegible]'s Chapel. The hall was neatly decorated with evergreens tastely arranged and stoves were temporarily put up to render the building comfortable and temper the effects of the raw air A number of tables were placed at intervals about the large hall on which were arranged a variety of articles offered for sale to whoever would purchase. The refreshment table was beautifully spread with all kinds of delicacies, such as could tempt the appetite of the most fastidious. Every arrangement was made by the thoughtful ladies having charge of the affair, and the wants and comfort of those who attended were not overlooked During the evening a large number of persons visited the hall and [illegible] themselves as being well satisfied with the cordial reception accorded them. Most of the fancy articles were sold and the refreshment table was well patronized We have been requested by the managers of [illegible] Chapel, ladies' fair and [illegible] that the doors will be opened to-day at 2 o'clock, specially for the benefit of the children. Lots of fruit, cakes, candies and toys.

PARDON OF WILLIE REYNARD.—A Salem ex[illegible] says: "The boy Willie Reynard, the [illegible] of the four lately sentenced to the [illegible] from Portland, was this morning [illegible] by Governor Grover, he having received a petition from the citizens of Multnomah county setting forth that 'the said Willie Reynard was at the time of conviction about [illegible] years of age and a proper subject for a reform school, but there being no institution of that character in this State and that a responsible citizen has undertaken, by indentures of apprenticeship duly executed to take and [illegible] on a farm in Linn county where he will be [illegible] from all influences from which he has heretofore suffered, and where he will be under good training The little fellow left on the train to day for his future home on the farm of Hl Smith of Harrisburg, much pleased with the change in his prospects for the future We hope Mr Smith may never have cause to regret his kindness"

STEAMER TELFAIR AFLOAT.—Efforts have been made for several days past to get the sunken steamer Gussie Telfair afloat which have at length been attended with success Since the recedure of the water of the Columbia thick, heavy sail has been stretched over the breach made in the hull, and Thursday the large steam syphon pumps commenced to clear the hold The water was constantly pumped out and the vessel was got afloat yesterday. The breach is only temporary but will be sufficient to keep the vessel afloat until she can be towed to Astoria and placed on the "gridiron" for a thorough overhauling The hold is almost free from water and to day the damaged freight will be taken out and transferred to the steamers Shoo Fly and Occident. To day the Gussie Telfair will probably be towed down to Astoria and beached

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—Thursday evening a meeting was held at the Turners Halle, by the members of the Portland Social Turn Verein, at which the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing term President, F. Eilers, vice president Wm Must, recording secretary A Schuman, corresponding secretary, G Frank, treasurer, C A. Alisky, 1st leader, A. AMUSEMENTS.

SOIREE MAGIQUE.—Prof Herrmann's second performance last evening at New Market Theater was attended by a still larger crowd than on the opening night. A more appreciative and highly delighted audience is seldom seen assembled at that popular and fashionable resort To say that all who witnessed his marvellous feats of magic were enthusiastic in their demonstrations of appreciation is nothing more than the plain truth. No one can go and see the great Herrmann perform his inexplicable tricks without coming away with the settled conviction that as an exponent of the mystic art, he stands peerless His tricks are more than simply clever they are mystifying beyond all explanation It is true Portland has been visited by a number of very clever magicians, but certainly we have never seen Prof Herrmann's equal Everything he does is performed with such artistic grace and ease that we admire as well as wonder Prof Herrmann performs all his feats in magic entirely unaided by the mechanical appliances so common to the art Concealed springs and electricity are alike discarded by this wonderful conjuror and what he does he does and the audience can t tell how he does it It matters not how carefully you may watch every movement he performs the feats with such celerity that it is impossible to detect the jugglery He can cheat you out of your eyes in spite of your scrutiny It would require a practical magician to give our readers the slightest idea how these marvelous tricks are performed We shall not attempt the task you must go and see for yourself Go and see Herrmann the peerless, and you will not regret it This afternoon, commencing at two o clock a grand matinee performance will be given to accommodate the ladies and the little folks During the matinee Prof Herrmann will distribute bon-bons among the audience Performance this evening when a jam may be anticipated

BRIEF NOTES.

Matinee this afternoon

Quite foggy at dusk last evening

Get the WEEKLY OREGONIAN, now ready

Stark street between Second and Third, is in a horrible condition

The telegraph lines in all directions are in good working condition

The City of Salem will leave for Harrisburg on Tuesday, and Ohio for Eugene City on Monday

Yesterday workmen were busy in laying Nicholson pavement on portions of Front and Pine streets

A new wharf is about to be rebuilt at the foot of Main street to replace that which was destroyed by the memorable fire of 1873

The mail bag robbery—a full report of the trial in the WEEKLY OREGONIAN copies of which can be obtained at the business office counter

We are in receipt of the prospectus of the Amateur Press to be issued on the 1st of January by the Amateur Publishing Company at Vancouver

Indian Tom was marched into the city jail last evening as drunk as a lord An accommodating M P found "Lo" tranquilly snoozing on the sidewalk

In the police court yesterday morning Andrew Morris and John Murray were each fined $5 for being drunk and conducting themselves in a disorderly manner Paid

Yesterday the damaged cable of the W U T Co which crosses the river here was taken up, the break discovered and repaired and cable laid again It is all O K now

The new cables belonging to the W U T Co and O S N Co have both been laid across the river from the foot of J street on the east side to the rear of the Cosmopolitan Hotel

The Sisters of Charity, who left Vancouver last month for their new Mission at Yakima W T arrived safely When our informant left on the return trip snow was several feet deep on the mountains.

Says the Advocate A party with eleven wagons and teams going from the Dalles to Yakima were recently snowed in on the route and were detained ten or twelve days being at last rescued by Father Wilbur, who sent teams to their relief

A few evenings since as Miss Hall who lives near Beaverton was riding to singing school the horse suddenly started and threw the young lady to the ground alighting with great force on her back and neck She was aided by friends carried home and at last accounts the chances for recovery were quite discouraging

The demand for Sewing Machines is on the increase—5 already disposed of at our agency since the arrival of the Orflamme We refer to the New Home Shuttle Its Light Running and low price give it the preference

Ladies should not fail to drop in at The White House 87 First street and see the beautiful novelties on exhibition for the holidays

After the matinee call at Fabre & Barnes' in Central Market

The Troubles with the Mexican Bandits.

SAN DIEGO, Dec 17 — Sheriff Hunsaker returned from San Rafael last night where he had been with a requisition for the Campo bandits. He was received by the authorities there cordially and was taken to the Governor, who issued a respondent to Governor Pacheco's requisition, authorizing the prisoners if caught, to be delivered to the sheriff at the line, and the sheriff organized a posse to assist in hunting them down. From the sheriff we learn that Beltran and Ramos were murdered on the 30th of November previous to the raid on Campo. Lopez is believed to be the leader of these bandits as he had not been seen since the 30th. He was present when Mendeson gave Lachure $600 to bring to San Diego.

The bodies of the two murdered men were in such a state of decomposition as to be scarcely recognizable but were identified by clothing and papers.

The [illegible] this morning says the fact can no longer be questioned that a condition of affairs exists along the border of a very grave character. There is positive evidence that there are at least 100 well armed men two or three miles below the line. Their camp fires are seen nightly in Tecate valley from the American side. These men have been coming from Sonora in small squads, and all seem to have money. Of course they are there for a purpose, whether to create revolution on the frontier or carry on a system of raids across the line upon American settlements can be only surmised. At present there are 200 American settlers along the line in this county who are unprotected and who might be murdered and plundered in detail. We can well understand the apprehension which prevails among them, as such protection as the local authorities afford is inadequate and can be only temporary.

Incendiary Convicted.

NAPA, Dec. 17 — Shattuwald, who has been under trial during the entire week at this place charged with burning Van Arsdale's store in Pope valley nine months ago, has been convicted by the jury and recommended to the mercy of the court. His case has excited great interest here and in San Francisco on account of the social standing of the accused.

NEVADA.

Vigilantes' Work.

CARSON, Dec 17. — About 6 o'clock this morning as P J McMahon, grave digger at Sam Wright's cemetery, was going to dig a grave he was horrified to see the body of a man hanging from the cross bar forming the archway to the entrance of the cemetery. The body proved to be that of Tom Burt, supposed to have been the ring leader in the incendiarisms here for some time past. On his breast was pinned a paper with the figures "601" on it. On Burt's testimony at the recent trial for arson young Dettling was sentenced to five years in the State prison, Burt turning State's evidence. The body was taken down by Coroner Ryder and brought to Wright's undertaker's establishment at 10 o'clock. A jury is summoned at the place of hanging, and the testimony will be taken at 1 o'clock. Further particulars to night. Great excitement prevails, and suspicious characters are making themselves scarce.

Further Particulars.

CARSON, Dec 17 — The following is from the Nevada Tribune. This morning at daylight the citizens of Carson were startled by learning that a man was found hanging by the neck to the gate of S C Wright's cemetery. Numbers forthwith rushed to the spot and there hung dead the body of a man, with a paper pinned to his breast, with the figures 601 written thereon. The man who had suffered the death penalty at the hands of an outraged public bears the name of Burt, and was one of the witnesses who testified against Dettling during his trial in the district court. It will be remembered that Dettling entirely contradicted the testimony of Burt, and asserted that he was led into ways that are dark by said Burt and his partners Latnor and Piercy. Dettling was convicted on his own admission, but there was not a man who listened to the testimony of Burt but believed that he was the greater villain of the two and the concocter of all the various plots that had been carried into execution. We understand that Burt has been repeatedly recommended to leave town, but disregarded the warning. Yesterday, so rumor has it, Burt, Piercy and Latnor received final notice. The two latter concluded that it was well to depart and so cleared out. Burt refused to go, giving as a reason that he had no money. Coin was offered him but he refused to take it, remarking, "They can't get me out of this town unless they pack me out." Every night lately depredations have been committed and petty thefts perpetrated. Only last evening an attempt was made to fire the soap factory in the southeastern part of town. This and the robbery of the night before, doubtless determined our citizens to summary vengeance on one they knew to be a culprit and so make of him an example that might deter his associates from further outrages. From a gentleman who has charge of and sleeps in the Curry engine house we learn that about half past one o'clock this morning, he heard a number of people whispering in the engine house and peeping from his room saw men with dark lanterns evidently seeking some one. The men were disguised so that our informant could not recognize any of them. It may be observed that the man Burt and a few others had for some time slept in the engine house. After some little time had elapsed the object for which the masked men were in search was discovered, and in a low, deep voice, one of them called out "Burt, get up, and be damned quick about it. Get your clothes on for you are wanted." No doubt Burt realized the situation and without any ado rose and donned his clothes, and was led away by his captors as noiselessly as if all were but a dream. Burt was conveyed to the graveyard and there hung by the neck. We learn from respectable citizens of this town that Burt was considered to be a very disreputable character when living at Hamilton, White Pine county, and that by interference of our informant he was saved from death at the hands of the people of Hamilton, for conduct similar to that practiced by him in this town, and further, when he left White Pine he made his escape from jail. He was a native of New York, aged 26 years.

The Hillsboro Independent tells this: "A Dutchman who lives up the Quick's canyon was out in the woods not long since when all at once the sun came out and shone clear and bright. Immediately he heard his dog barking furiously off in the brush. Then the Teuton took his gun and went to the dog and found him with his hair all on end barking at the sun. It had been so long since the brute had seen old Sol that he did not know which one of the boys he was."

An endowment of $22,000 has been subscribed for the Baptist College at McMinnville and a fund of $10,000 is looked for as a Centennial movement. The Executive Board of the State recommend mass meetings in McMinnville the third week in December, and in Portland, Salem, Albany and Brownsville at the earliest practicable time thereafter, and that every Baptist pastor in the State shall try to get $1 from each member of his congregation — men, women and children — for the building fund of the college.

The Hillsboro Independent says: "About the 1st of May, 1875, Mr Rodger McPoland and wife, who lived at that time on a homestead on the foothills west of the Tualatin river, known as the Chehalem hills, dissolved partnership, owing to incongeniality of temper, and Mrs McPoland, with the children (some six or ten), moved into the barn. At the May term of the circuit court Mrs McP brought suit for divorce, but while the court was in session she and Rodger compromised the matter. They went home, but could not agree. Mrs McP went to Yamhill and took up her residence at the house of a friend. Rodger followed, and cut up so he got in jail. The old lady took possession of the homestead. Her husband got out of jail, sold the homestead and the buyer put Mrs McP out. The buyer left the house one day and she took peaceable possession, which she still holds."

FRIDAY EVENING, Dec 17, 1875

Domestic Produce.

The market is still manifesting some life but prices generally show no tendency to appreciate. The supply of leading articles is quite ample for the home trade, and shipments are inclined to fall off slightly owing to a demoralized condition of the San Francisco market, where it is reported that over supplies of produce in many lines and depression in the money market have brought prices down very low. The volume of transactions here in wheat has declined during the week under review owing to the drop in prices, and at this time there seems no immediate revival. There are still quite large stocks of the cereal in store here as well as at many points up the valley, and ships arriving quite slowly, activity is suppressed and a dull market is the rule. The decline noticed in our Liverpool cablegram, which is corroborated by private dispatches, is rather unexpected in many quarters. Aside from wheat the local produce market shows no important change. Flour is quiet and steady. Oats are still held at our last quotations with but little increase in receipts; mill feed is in rec plenti ful and quotable a little weaker. Provisions are active with a fair demand for choice bacon. The packing season is fairly inaugurated and the business here is being conducted on quite as large a scale as ever before. Dairy products are in liberal supply and prices hardly as firm as last week, and for sometime past eggs have been steady at 40 cents to the trade this week. Poultry is still plentiful, but prices are a little improved by the holiday demand. Hides have declined.
